Glad I caught your eye!

Fishing gear trash is a reel problem for wildlife. On this vessel, we're committed to keeping it out of the water.

Why does it matter?

Birds, seals, turtles, and other animals will try to eat the gear, which can lead to injury, starvation, or death.

Fishing line, hooks, and small gear can entangle wildlife.

Discarded fishing gear contributes to garbage patches, large areas of floating trash brought together by currents.

How can you help?

Look out on land for fishing gear collection bins.

Be an ambassador & help spread the word.

Use the on board trash bin. Ask your captain if you don't see it.

Scan to help keep our oceans clean!